Today's Story

Clones recaptured by Argentinian Government

A Satire News Story By Sasha

According to Argentinian Ambassador, Lauren Westendorf, the two clones Jeremy and Harrison have been relocated and captured. “We have caught both subjects in the middle of the rainforest, and have decided to turn them into cyborgs, to better assist the ASA (the Argentinian Secret Agency)” she said. The Argentinian government has also announced that the cyborgs, now renamed J-my and H-rsn will be joining forces with Devon-X, who is rumored to be starting a new army. “We support Devon-X and his army plan to dethrone Joe Zaffuto, who recently destroyed all human control to Devon-X. When told about this, Jow immediately started to pack his bags and look up flights to Chile, which is coincidentally right next to Argentina. We here at the Sci-Tech Times are always neutral, but wish both sides the best of luck in their battles.
