Breaking News: We Have A Sasquatch At Camp!

A Satire News Story By Ben

Last session, while on his day off; Dan Shapiro was found picking at leftover food in the dish return by one of his Ramone 1 campers, who had come inside to the Chadar Ochel to refill his water bottle. This particular camper had studied sasquatches before, and saw that Dan was showing signs of being one. From that week on, he followed Dan around camp, trying to prove he was a sasquatch. He says that Dan spends time in the woods quite often, hunting birds, squirrels, and deer. He eventually led Dan to the BioZone lab, where Jen, the instructor, performed a DNA test on him, which proved that he was a 43-year-old sasquatch from Saskatchewan. When we, the Sci-Tech Times, interviewed Dan, he said that he noticed Jay-Nor The Conqueror raiding his home, Camp Sci-Tech Woods, and followed her here to Sci-Tech East. Dan and Jay-Nor became great friends ever since, and together they have been planning the raid on all of the other Sci-Tech camps for their air conditioners. On a side note, the now self-aware Devon-x managed to program himself into all of our golf carts so that he can be everywhere on camp.
