Update on Jay-Nor

A Satire News Story By Noah

Before Sam finds the Dictionary Gods, Jay-Nor is now at Sci-Tech South to raid their air conditioners. “They’re in Antarctica, they don’t even need air conditioners!” she proclaims. Then she sneezed. Just as she was about to pull out a tissue to blow her nose, Devon-X engaged his thrusters and flew over to her. “You can’t be sneezing; it’s summer. Cold and flu season is winter, but kids should still wash their hands frequently,” he was seen saying. He was observed trying to convince Jay-Nor also to take the heater from Sci-Tech South, supposedly to balance out the effect of the air conditioners. Later, he said in an interview, “cyborgs need routine. Routine means summer. Summer means heat.” Although Jay-Nor is fully aware of Sam’s air conditioner sacrifice, she takes the heater. Luckily for Sci-Tech East, the radiators are frozen due to the conditions of Antarctica and will only be operational during session 3. Coincidentally, Devon-X plans to take a vacation to Byfield during session 3, “because it’s the session that’s almost like summer.” Jay-Nor vows not to raid heaters from Sci-Tech West since they are also operational and need a summer environment.

Bonus Satire Story By Jon

After years of searching, we have recovered Jeremy Kerr from the ice around the south pole after the freezing over of Sci-tech south, Jeremy was a subject of sci-tech south’s super instructor project, where he was deemed worthy by eccentric scientist named Gustav Lavearie. He now will joining Sci-tech’s defense force; SHMIRA.
